Special Events and Student Opportunities

- Students of all ages and levels are afforded numerous opportunities to participate in festivals and competitions sponsored by the studio. Additionally, there are numerous events sponsored by groups such as the Birmingham Music Teachers Association, Metro Music Forum, Alabama Music Teachers Association and Music Teachers National Association.
- Required of all pre-college students: 1) Participation in regular private lessons and any available studio special events or workshops; 2) Participation in spring recital and other studio performances appropriate for specified age and level of advancement.

- Teacher consent is required for student participation in all non-studio competitions, workshops, master classes and camps.

Attendance Policy: There are no refunds for missed lessons. “Make-up” lessons will be offered during specified “catchup weeks” for lessons missed due to student illness or teacher cancellation. There are no “make-ups” offered if a student must miss a lesson for any reason other than illness, death in the family, or lessons canceled by teacher due to teacher illness or emergency weather conditions. Non-emergency cancellations for events such as birthday parties, school trips, family vacations, baseball games, other extra-curricular activities, last-minute cancellations (without 24 hours notice) and “no shows” will necessitate charging the full lesson fee for the unused time reserved for the student. Please do NOT attend lessons when you are ill and highly contagious. Please do NOT attend lessons if a family member or someone you have been in contact with has contracted Covid. All lessons missed due to student or teacher illness will be ‘made-up’.

Termination of Lessons: In the event of irregular attendance, repeated late tuition payments, repeated failure to prepare assigned material, student’s lack of interest over extended time period, or regular inappropriate behavior during lessons or group events, the instructor reserves the right to terminate lessons. When possible, a one-month trial period with parent notification will precede lesson termination. A minimum of 2 lessons notification is requested of those who must discontinue study at any time throughout the year. Students who discontinue study at any time during the year may be added to the end of the studio’s waiting list. A student from the waiting list will fill the empty slot and placement in future scheduling will not be guaranteed.

PLEASE POST the studio calendar and record all dates in your PERSONAL CALENDARS. Be sure to visit the website calendar regularly as dates are sometimes changed due to teacher performances or travel

Media Release Consent Form: Students (or parents/guardians of students under 18) are asked to sign a consent form requesting permission for a student’s photo, video, or audio recording to be published on the studio web sites or in printed publications such as a studio newsletter, brochure, or educational materials.

Practice Requirements: Learning how to practice correctly is a process and requires dedication, diligence and consistency from both student and parent. Students and parents of pre-college students are asked to refer to guidelines provided in the studio handout Practice Expectations and Recommendations. Careful application of these guidelines and other teacher suggestions will enable advancement and ultimate enjoyment of music.

- Regular, concentrated, daily practice plus regular lessons and special events will lead to a student’s progress. The amount of attentive practice is directly proportional to the amount of progress a student makes. Each student will progress as quickly as the assigned material is sufficiently mastered.

- All students are enrolled with the understanding that they are required to schedule at least 6 different practice sessions on six days a week unless sick or out of town. Additionally, students are encouraged to schedule several sets of 21 consecutive days (21 CD's Program) of practice throughout the year.
- It is important to reserve a "set time" for your practice. Write-out your practice schedule and POST. Try to keep this appointment with yourself, just as you would keep a dentist appointment.
- Quality and consistency of practice is more important than quantity.

Important Considerations Involving the Development of a Healthy Piano Technic:

- It is important that the student's fingernails be kept short not only for the lessons but for daily practice as well.
- It is imperative that students adjust benches during lessons AND HOME PRACTICE. Correct bench height = bottom of elbows level with tops of white keys. Correct bench distance = elbows at sides and SLIGHTLY to front of torso/waist.
- Feet should not "dangle". PLEASE PROVIDE A FOOT STOOL, or use rubber mats or books, if feet cannot balance comfortably on floor (with heels FLAT on the floor).
- Bench should not be too close to piano. Weight should be distributed evenly between "sit bones" and feet. Therefore, it is important to sit on FRONT part of bench, to throw balance slightly forward toward keys. Please visit McLellandPiano.com for articles on developing a healthy technic. DVD's and reference articles are also available at the studio.

General Rules:

- All students are asked to arrive on time for the lessons and special group events AND TO BRING ALL books and materials to each lesson even if there was not an assignment made in a particular book at the previous lesson. (Books with "Leave at Home" should NOT be brought to lessons. Please update and cleanout music bags to save valuable lesson time.)
- At the Hoover Studio, students should come directly to the studio and begin work at the computer station or wait to begin private lesson upon arrival.
- To prevent wasting valuable lesson time, restrooms at the Hoover studio should be used for emergencies only. Please arrive at lessons prepared to play having finished snacks and drinks before entering studio.
- NO FOOD OR DRINKS ALLOWED NEAR PIANOS OR KEYBOARDS. One drop of liquid spilled in a grand piano could be a $60,000+ mishap.
- Please wash hands before lessons.
- If you are the 1st student of the day and arrive early, please wait in your car until your lesson time. Do not open the gate as our dogs may still be outside and may escape.
- The teacher cannot be responsible for student supervision before or after teaching hours. Please inform the teacher in advance if it is necessary for a carpool to arrive early or late. Teacher supervision may not be available before and after teaching hours.

- Parents are invited to wait in the waiting area during lessons however please refrain from talking or using cellphones in the Hoover waiting area. Siblings are also invited to wait in the waiting area during lessons however running, screaming and other inappropriate behavior in the studio or at any festival or performance venue is to be avoided at all times.
- Please instruct younger children who will be waiting alone to treat the furnishings and materials with care --- no writing on furniture, floors, walls, drawing in textbooks etc.

A Final Note: The study of music is rewarding and enjoyable, but it is also challenging and demands discipline and hard work. Each student will move along as quickly as the assigned material is sufficiently mastered. We all have bad days, or even bad weeks. These should be expected to occur with all students. A student/parent should only become concerned if these “off lessons” continue for several weeks at a time, or if several quarter evaluations indicate poor progress. If this occurs, the teacher will contact you to see if a solution can be worked out together. Otherwise, don’t worry – just enjoy!

A note to parents: It is my sincere desire that my teaching and your support at home --- with encouragement, praise, and discipline when needed --- will form an effective team. Piano lessons may be the first serious commitment a young child has ever made. As you know, a child will be only as committed as his/her parents are. By working together, we can make music one of the most enjoyable experiences your child will ever encounter. Music study is one of the few avenues of training they will carry with them an entire lifetime.

Communication Concerns If you have any questions or concerns, I will be happy to discuss them with you. Please feel free to phone or e-mail to discuss your or your child’s progress. During teaching hours calls will be answered by the machine and returned as soon as possible. PHONE: (205) 908-5830 E-mail: McLellandPiano@gmail.com.
